

State Plans Appeal On Supreme Court Price-Fixing Ban

Holton V. Noyes Says Agriculture Department Would Carry Case as Ruled by Bergan to Appellate Division

No Policy Change

Buffalo Attorney Says Bargaining Agency Will Still Withhold Milk

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP).—The State Department of Agriculture planned today an appeal to the higher courts on a supreme court ruling invalidating price-fixing and equalization provisions of the milk control act.

Informed that Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergan had declared those two provisions of the law unconstitutional, Agriculture Commissioner Holton V. Noyes indicated that department attorneys would carry the case into the appellate division.

"The point is so very important," Noyes said, "it undoubtedly should go to the higher court." He declined further comment pending a study of the ruling and its effect on the state's two billion dollar dairy industry.

At the same time Edmund F. Cooke of Buffalo, attorney for the Metropolitan Producers Bargaining Agency, said the decision would not affect the agency's policy in withholding milk from metropolitan distributors who have failed to make payments under a federal-state milk marketing order.

Under Federal Jurisdiction
The federal-state order, he asserted, is under the jurisdiction of the federal courts which "have consistently held" it constitutional. A test case involving its constitutionality is pending in the United States district court here.

Noyes, as he conferred today with Milton Kaiffen, the department's counsel, amplified his previous comment.

"The decision will have a very dubious effect on both orders (state and federal-state), even though an appeal is taken," Noyes commented. "Justice Bergan's decision that the legislature has no right to delegate its powers is a contention not argued in other suits thus far."

Benjamin T. Chittenden, of Lancaster, N. Y., president of the Niagara Frontier Milk Producers Bargaining Agency, said he expected that sales of milk by farmers in the Buffalo area probably would continue under the present arrangement until a higher court decides the issue.

Not Unexpected
"This adverse decision was not unexpected," Chittenden asserted. "Our agency, which includes 99 per cent of the producers supplying this market, is prepared to carry on with or without a state price order."

The Niagara Frontier Agency was established last June under the Rogers-Alton milk law and markets approximately 3,000 milk producers in seven western New York counties.

Payments to producers since the agency's price order became effective October 1 have been nearly $500,000 a month, John Drought, agency director, said.

16-Page Decision
Justice Bergan's 16-page decision was the first handed down on the Rogers-Alton law since its enactment in 1937, replacing the "emergency" act which had been in operation since 1933.

The law permits dealers and producers to bargain collectively for prices to be paid the latter.

The ruling was made in actions brought by four distributors of the Niagara frontier milk marketing area who attacked the law as unconstitutional on the grounds it is "confiscatory."

Three Instances
The jurist, in his ruling, said methods adopted in placing the act in operation included the "naked delegation of legislative power" in three separate instances:

"The grant of power to the commissioner (Noyes) to determine that the fixing of prices should be undertaken in the public interest, under a declared policy silent in respect to price fixing."

"The power to establish the equalization fund and to compel contributions to it . . . and, 'A delegation of legislative power to a majority of (milk) producers . . ."

The milk act gives the commissioner power to fix minimum prices in an area on consent of 75 per cent of the producers there. He also may equalize prices paid in excess of the minimum by establishing an average and by taking away money from those above the average and giving it to those under it."

Hitler-Washington Simile Causes Riot

Los Angeles, Feb. 23 (AP).—Seven police radio cars answered a riot call at the Deutsches Haus last night when booing pickets outside smashed windows with rocks as 300 Bund members heard Adolf Hitler likened to George Washington.

One man, wearing Nazi insignia, was beaten, and members were pelted with eggs and overripe tomatoes.

Once, during the meeting, which was delayed more than an hour by the demonstration, a catcalling wedge of pickets attempted to gain entrance through a side door, but was stopped by police.

David Hall, Jr., Glendale pamphlet publisher, delivered an address in which he described Washington as "a leader of a revolution who was like Hitler today."

Change in New Deal Farm Price Policy Is Held Possible

About-Face in Method Would Be Result of American Failure to Promote Higher Prices

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP).—A change in administration farm price policies was forecast in authoritative circles today if American efforts to promote international cooperation to boost commodity prices fail.

The administration is attempting, by means of informal discussions, to get major wheat and cotton producing nations to join in conferences to discuss marketing and price problems.

To date these efforts have borne little fruit. A committee representing the wheat nations is meeting in London now in an attempt to agree on an agenda for a proposed conference. Little headway has been made on a cotton conference.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace have suggested that such conferences might adopt export quotas under which world markets would be divided "equitably" among all producing countries. This would make it possible to eliminate price-cutting and export-dumping policies.

Present farm price policies have had the effect, government economists said, of holding domestic as well as world prices of cotton and wheat at levels higher than they would otherwise be.

Foreign as well as domestic producers of these crops have benefited, it was said. Economists have voiced the opinion that world cotton prices now would be two or three cents a pound lower except for the American cotton loan program.

Administration leaders were reported to believe that the United States should not attempt to hold up world prices of these crops unless it gets help from other producing countries.

Failure to obtain agreements of other countries to participate in conferences most likely would result, it was said, in administration recommendations to Congress that the law be changed to permit loan rates below current market prices.

Coupled with such recommendations probably would be suggestions that Congress provide some other means of augmenting farmer income.

Gasoline 'Gets' Firemen

Kansas City, Feb. 23 (AP).—Six firemen were burned, four so severely they may die, in an explosion and fire today at a fire station. The firemen were scrubbing a floor with gasoline at the time. Friction of the scrub brushes caused the gasoline to explode, attendants said. The men critically burned were: Norman Brown, 25; Robert Mueller, 29; Homer Trost, 26, and James Doman. William R. McKenzie and George Monahan were less seriously burned. The blast was so severe that it damaged the brick building.

Two Premiers Say Appeasement Is No Sign of Surrender

Chamberlain, Daladier Are Quoted Thus in Rome; Anglo Prime Minister Working on Plan for Italy

'Peace With Honor'

Daladier Says in Paris Speech 'We Reject Any Idea' of Making Surrender

(By The Associated Press)
British Prime Minister Chamberlain was pictured in Rome today as preparing to mediate the issues between France and Italy as both Chamberlain and French Premier Daladier made clear that "appeasement" does not mean surrender.

A dispatch from London in the newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma quoted an "excellent" British informant as saying that overtures already had been made for a plan Chamberlain was preparing to settle Italy's as yet unofficial claims for colonial concessions from France.

Confirmation, however, was lacking in British official quarters in London, where it has been held that Paris and Rome should deal directly.

Follows Policy Statements

The report followed statements of policy last night by both the French and British premiers that were seen as evidence their stands against the Italian-German-Japanese triumvirate had hardened.

"We reject any idea of surrender," Daladier declared in an address to the American Club of Paris. "We cannot admit anything but peace with honor."

Daladier's expression of "solidarity" between France and the United States in working for liberty was interpreted by Frenchmen as an implied assurance of American support of France against "blackmail."

Quotes Shakespeare

Chamberlain, at the same time, was quoting Shakespeare in a speech at Blackburn, England, to tell Britons that "come the three corners of the world in arms, and we shall shock them."

The question of peace or more war in Spain remained unanswered as French Senator Leon Berard returned to Burgos, Generalissimo Francisco Franco's capital, for further negotiations looking toward recognition of Franco's regime by France and Britain.

Daladier's words were interpreted widely as a reply to American criticism, like that in the address by Senator Pittman (Dem., Nevada) denouncing the English-French appeasement policy.

Expresses Confidence

Daladier expressed confidence, nevertheless, in the "solidarity" of France and the United States in working for liberty and democracy.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt, outlining similar ideals, gave his assurance that "we feel that these are worth defending and we intend to defend them."

The ambassador said the United States was preoccupied with a "growing apprehension that if there should be a war in Europe, we might be drawn into it. We are not in the habit of starting wars."

The strongest applause of the evening was reserved for the Duke of Windsor, whom Club President Max Shoop introduced with the remark that his presence gave the occasion a "triumvirate" nature.

Despite shouts of "speech" the ex-king of Britain smilingly declined to address the club.

Realty Tax Defeat Is Forecast by Some Capital Leaders, Also Cut in State Aid; Lawmakers Seek Ways to Prune Budget

Record Crowd Storms Tax Hearing

Nearly 7,000 persons crowded into the New York State Capitol at Albany for the largest legislative hearing ever held there, the subject being Governor Herbert H. Lehman's record $111,682,122 budget. A small part of the crowd is shown in the Assembly Chamber where the hearing was held. Others filled Capitol corridors, unable to get into the Assembly. Taxpayers came from all parts of the state to debate the budget and three suggested new taxes.

Business Men's Group, Hotelmen to Protest Route 9 to World's Fair

Rowe, President of Business Association, Says Organization Will Meet Next Week to Consider Matter—Indications Are Whole West Shore of Hudson in Revolt

Designation by the State Traffic Commission of Route 9 on the east shore of the Hudson river as a "model" highway for traffic enroute to the New York World's Fair is being protested vigorously by many organizations and groups along the historic West Shore of the river and a formal protest is being planned to the commission.

James Rowe, president of the Kingston Business Men's Association, this morning said that the matter would be taken up at the monthly meeting of the association next Thursday. Meanwhile he intended to get in touch with Senator Arthur H. Wicks and Assemblyman J. Edward Conway and discuss the matter.

Announcement that the Traffic Commission would designate the east shore route through the Hudson Valley as a "model" route to the World's Fair, thereby giving wide publicity to the east shore route over the more scenic and historic west shore route south of Albany has raised a storm of protest.

Grounds of Protest

Many associations and groups of citizens and historic groups have entered a protest on the grounds that the designation of the east shore as a "model" route would take a majority of through traffic over that route. Hotelmen and restaurant associations have added their protest.

Mr. Rowe said that the Kingston Business Men's Association arranged

Dr. Shotwell Says Coughlin 'Sullies Name of Priest'

Woodstock Resident Is Given Honorary Degree at Johns Hopkins; Gives Warning of Demagogues

Dr. James T. Shotwell of Woodstock, member of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, asserted yesterday at Baltimore that the danger of the demagogue who "stirs resentments into hostilities" was greater now than ever before, according to The Associated Press.

Dr. Shotwell, director of the division of history and economics of the endowment, spoke at the 63rd commemoration day of the University, announced a grant of $25,000 from the Refuge Economics Corporation of New York for a continuation of a scientific study of settlement begun ten years ago. He also said the Rockefeller Foundation had granted $20,000 as a fund to research projects to be approved by the executive committee of the School of Medicine.

Dr. Shotwell said the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin "sullies the name of Christian priest by the un-Christian animus of his attack against millions of his fellow men."

Officials of Two Continents Are Perplexed by Signal From Mysterious Ship Saying Vessel Is Torpedoed

This is the liner Bretagne, believed to be the ship reported torpedoed in the Atlantic ocean 2,000 miles east of New York by a mysterious submarine. Call letters given in the SOS call received by an American freighter were "PECC," listed in Lloyd's register as once having been issued to the 10,000-ton Dutch steamer Flandria, but not now assigned to any ship. Lloyd's register stated that the Flandria in 1936 became the French liner Bretagne. The Bretagne has accommodations for 110 passengers.

Thousands Who March Upon Albany Demand Entire Tax Program Be Rejected; if Legislature Considers Sales Tax New Hearing Will Be Called For, Says Mrs. Griffith

State Officials Attend Perley Pitcher Funeral

Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP).—Governor Lehman, Lieut. Gov. Charles Poletti and members of the legislature came here today for the funeral of Perley A. Pitcher, senate Republican majority leader.

Pitcher, who died of a heart attack in his Albany hotel room Monday afternoon, was to be buried from his home (2:30 p. m.) with the Rev. Fred R. Tiffany, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiating.

A special train carrying legislators and officials, left Albany early this morning. Another, bearing legislators from the western part of the state, came from Buffalo.

Pitcher's body was brought here Tuesday afternoon from Albany where the legislature adjourned for a week shortly after it was discovered.

Economists Expect Business to Swing Higher in April

Retail Trade Holds Up Well, Experts Report, and Future Factors Forecast Industrial Advance

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP).—A group of government economists forecast today that a further business upturn would begin in April.

After an improvement which carried the federal reserve board index of industrial production from 76 last May to 104 in December, factory paces have been unchanged since Christmas.

The economists who advise major federal departments viewed this recent leveling off as a necessary breath-taking pause. Production, they said, got ahead of consumption, but now the two appear nearly in balance, since retail trade has been holding up well.

Government spending, home building, and possible utility and railroad spending are among the factors which the economists named in predicting further upturn.

One of the group said he expected the rise to continue generally throughout the year and to make possible a 1939 average of industrial production of 106 on the federal reserve index. This would compare with an average of 86 in 1938 and 110 in 1937. The index is based on 1922-23 as 100.

Private prognosticators also have been optimistic recently, including Col. Leonard P. Ayers of Cleveland, who said last week that "the business gains so far attained are likely to be pretty well held, and that new advances may well be expected."

Administration officials have said little publicly about the situation, although Secretary Morgenthau of the treasury told a House committee in January he looked for some improvement this year.

The stimulus of federal spending looms large in nearly all the government economists' forecasting. They point out that the federal budget calls for spending about $3,700,000,000 before June 30, and that much of it will be for public works projects. Allocations under the $1,000,000,000 PWA program were made last fall, but the bulk of the work will be done before spring.

Similarly, the experts bank heavily on the demand for building new homes and apartments which got under way last year. They see potential price increases for building materials as the only possible threat, but consider such increases unlikely.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Feb. 23 (AP).—The position of the treasury February 20: Receipts $18,587,252.93; expenditures $27,358,555.81; net balance $3,415,521,229.01, including $2,766,452,282.63 working balance; customs receipts for the month $15,868,726.16. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $3,595,881,251.06; expenditures $5,730,553,981.29, including $1,953,637,534.95 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures $2,134,677,730.23; gross debt $39,799,820,846.69, a decrease of $3,399,447.92 below the previous day; gold assets $11,816,394,848.72.

Minority Favor

Small Group of About 20 Different Organizations Presents New Slant on Budget

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP).—Defeat of Governor Lehman's proposed $26,000,000 "realty" tax was forecast today by some legislative leaders who saw an equivalent slash in state aid as a "likely" result of the unprecedented protest against his $111,682,122 budget.

Closer scrutiny by legislators of the Democratic chief executive's record-high spending program for possible additional pruning also was indicated after the first session of a public hearing which, attended by thousands, developed these outstanding demands:

Would Reject Program
Rejection of the governor's fire tax program, including proposals for a two-tenths of one per cent levy on gross business turnover and a 50 per cent increase in the $1-a-gallon impost on hard liquor.

"Drastic" reduction of the budget by slashes in home relief and education costs and state salaries. Defeat of any alternative "sales tax" proposal, including a bill for such a levy now before the legislature.

Any "serious consideration" by the legislature for a sales tax "a way out" will bring public demands for a new hearing, Mrs. Alice W. Griffith, executive secretary of the Westchester County Taxpayers Association, said.

The spokesmen for one of the leading organizations in whipping up protests for the proposed state financial program, Mrs. Griffith said taxpayers at the hearing "proved their overwhelming opposition to the governor's record budget and the new taxes it entails."

"But the legislature must remember the hearing was solely on the budget as promulgated and was not a hearing on the sales tax," she added. "If the sales tax is to be championed as a way out, the small businessman, the housewife and the man in the street will insist on a hearing."

Hidden Sales Tax
Asserting "the only solution is to cut the budget," Mrs. Griffith also assailed the proposed tax on business turnover which she said "amounts to a hidden sales tax, and no one wants the sales tax in any form."

In the face of economy demands, however, a minority group of approximately 20 different organizations either approved the budget in its present form or urged new and additional taxes.

Among them was the State, County and Municipal Workers of America whose spokesman, Henry W. Denning, lauded the governor's budget as the "irreducible minimum below which the state cannot go without irreparable harm to the health and welfare of the people."

He urged, in addition to approval of the Lehman tax proposals, a $50,000,000 emergency bond issue, an emergency tax on all net taxable incomes over $5,000, and increased levies on stock transfers, estates, franchise and personal and corporate incomes.

Rejection Predicted

Rejection of the proposed real estate levy was predicted by an influential member of the legislative committee which sat for nearly eight hours yesterday in a jammed Assembly chamber to hear discussions that concentrated, for the most part, on that proposal.

The hearing was recessed until tomorrow (10 a. m.) to permit legislators to attend the funeral of Perley A. Pitcher, late Republican Senate majority leader, today in Watertown.

Demands for "rigid economies" strengthened the position recently taken by some leaders of the Republican legislative majority in favor of a sufficient reduction in state aid to offset the $26,000,000 which the real estate tax is estimated to yield.

They felt such action would be "more satisfactory" than substitution of a two per cent state-wide sales tax, estimated by proponents to yield $140,000,000 as compared with the $64,000,000 the governor's entire tax program would bring.

ODD TALE OF SEA; THE SEQUEL COMES 40 YEARS LATER

Incident That Proves Men of The Sea and Their Sons
Do Not Forget.

HARBOR GRACE, NEWFOUNDLAND—Newfoundland's strange story of the sea was told here.

Forty years ago Captain Barbour and his crew were "working seals" some hundred miles off the Newfoundland coast.

At nightfall when the sealers returned aboard the steamer from the ice over which they had hunted during the day, they reported seeing another vessel—not a sealer. The vessel was sinking and was caught hard and fast in the drifting ice floes, writes S. L. Sheppard in the Chicago Tribune.

Captain Barbour started his ship in the direction the seal hunters had indicated. At noon the next day after heavy battling and pushing through the ice with his ship, the lookout in the crew's nest reported there was no sign of a ship, but there appeared to be a crowd of men huddled on the ice.

Pushes Ship Into Ice.

Captain Barbour pushed his ship harder into the ice. Just before night again closed in he reached the marooned crew of the ship which the sealers had spied.

The ship was gone, having been crushed in the ice and sent to the bottom, but Captain Mitchell, its skipper, and the 27 members of his crew had scrambled on to the ice before it sank. They were taken aboard the sealing steamer.

Captain Barbour abandoned his sealing voyage and took the shipwrecked men into St. John's, Newfoundland.

Now, 40 years later, comes the sequel.

Capt. Ken Barbour, a son of the old sealing skipper, is a skipper in his own right now. He is in charge of the motor ship National IV. In it, with his crew, he left Fishing Ship Harbor, Labrador, for St. John's. Three miles off Battle Island the ship's tail shaft broke and jammed the rudder hard to starboard, leaving the helpless ship drifting toward shore.

The vessel seemed doomed until the captain managed to run up a bit of head sail, all the canvas the ship carried. He worked the ship off into the traffic lane of ships passing in and out of the Strait of Belle Isle.

The ship drifted for days. Seven passing ships failed to see its distress signals, but the eighth reached the National IV and took off Capt. Ken Barbour and his crew.

Tows Ship Into Port.

Though the rescue ship was racing against time, its captain decided that, rather than sink the National IV he would change his course and tow the disabled ship into St. Anthony.

Captain Barbour, as he thanked his rescuer, was astonished to learn that the latter's name was Captain Mitchell.

"Why," he cried, "in my home I have a large photograph of a Captain Mitchell of Bristol. It was given to me by my father, who rescued Captain Mitchell from the ice 40 years ago."

"That," Captain Mitchell replied, "must be a picture of my father. Often I've heard him speak of your father's kindness."

'Spinsters' Spree' Jars

Poise of University Men

MONTREAL—McGill university coeds made many a male student blush during their "Sadie Hawkins week," better known as the "Spinsters' Spree."

The coeds declared an "open season" on males during the week, and, adopting the Mounties slogan, "Get your man," started "wooing" the male students instead of sitting back and waiting to be "wooed." They made the dates and financed them.

Even the most sophisticated males admitted that it was hard to preserve that nonchalant look when their coed escorts stepped up to the theater box office ticket and said "Two, please," while the boys stayed at one side, held doors open for them and helped them on and off with their coats.

Traffic Death in 1824

Told in Rhyme on Slab

WARWICK, MASS.—A weather-worn slate slab near the shores of Moore pond marks the site of a "traffic" death which occurred in 1824.

The slab inscription says that on November 12, 1824 three-year-old James B. Leonard was thrown from a cart and was crushed to death beneath a wheel.

The inscription includes this poem:

"Here I passed from earth to glory
In a moment quick as thought
Passing stranger, read this story,
On this consecrated spot."

We've noticed that just about the time we pick up a new and useful word, other people begin to work it to death.

Key West Will Make Comeback

'Experiment' City, Rich in Historic Lore, Seeks Lost Prestige.

KEY WEST.—This "experiment" city, rich in historic lore and natural beauty, but money poor, has started down the comeback trail, seeking to regain the tourist dollar the prestige it once held as a leading industrial center of the South.

A "problem child" of the recovery administration, Key West underwent a complete transformation with the aid of federal funds allotted by officials who visioned this coral island as a future tourist center unrivaled on the continent.

When Key West's population dwindled from 27,000 in 1912 to 11,000 in 1924, 60 per cent of whom were on relief, federal agencies stepped in and laid plans for rehabilitation of the city.

Subsequently there followed completion of the Overseas highway, a $7,400,000 project connecting Key West with the Florida mainland, and a program of beautification over the entire island.

Old Beauty Retained.
Through the period of rejuvenation the city retained its old-world charm and tropical beauty. It remained the romantic Key West of its fictionlike history when pirates and wreckers cruised its surrounding waters and Spanish sailors roamed its narrow palm-lined streets.

Stories of its history, obtained mostly from the weather-beaten fishermen whose families have resided here for generations, revealed that in the early part of the Nineteenth century a majority of the inhabitants were engaged in salvaging ships wrecked on nearby reefs. The practice became little more than legalized piracy, according to reports. The intrepid wreckers, it was stated, salvaged more than $1,000,000 worth of silks, wines, silverware and lumber between 1831 and 1844. The money helped them to sustain a fleet of more than 50 vessels to carry on their activities.

Channels Now Marked.
While a string of brightly-lighted navigation aids now marks the treacherous channels and hidden reefs surrounding the island, a number of large vessels are grounded yearly in the vicinity of Key West. They are aided by an ocean-going wrecker stationed here.

Thousands of Cuban political exiles who sought refuge here in the latter part of the Nineteenth century aided in the mushroom growth of the island as an industrial center. The peak was reached in 1896 and the decline slowly began. In 1912, Henry M. Flagler, Florida developer extending his East Coast railroad across the Florida Keys to Key West, found a city which was disintegrating. Cigar manufacturers, beset by labor troubles, were moving to Tampa, on the Florida west coast. The sponge market collapsed. Vessels no longer made the port a stopping point.

Federal efforts to rehabilitate the city took a terrific blow in 1935 when the Labor Day hurricane destroyed the railroad and isolated the city. The outcome, however, was the Overseas Highway, built on the roadbed of the railway and bringing Miami within three hours by automobile.

Today, this southernmost United States city, sandwiched in between the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean and bolstered by a federal government program, looks forward to a new era of prosperity as a tourist center.

Shale Reserves Protect U. S. From Oil Shortage

NEW YORK.—America need not worry about exhausting the automobile fuel supply for at least 2,000 years, according to Hugh D. Miser, chief of the section of fuels of the United States geological survey.

Miser said a supply of bituminous substances, even larger than the billions of barrels of petroleum in known reserves, is sealed in shale reserves.

During the last 20 years new discoveries of petroleum have balanced consumption, Miser said. The extent of the nation's petroleum reserves rests largely with "the geologist to continue to aid in the increasingly difficult problem of discovery, with the engineer to improve drilling technique to increase recoveries and with the chemist to continue improvements in refining practice."

White Citizens Support African Medicine Men

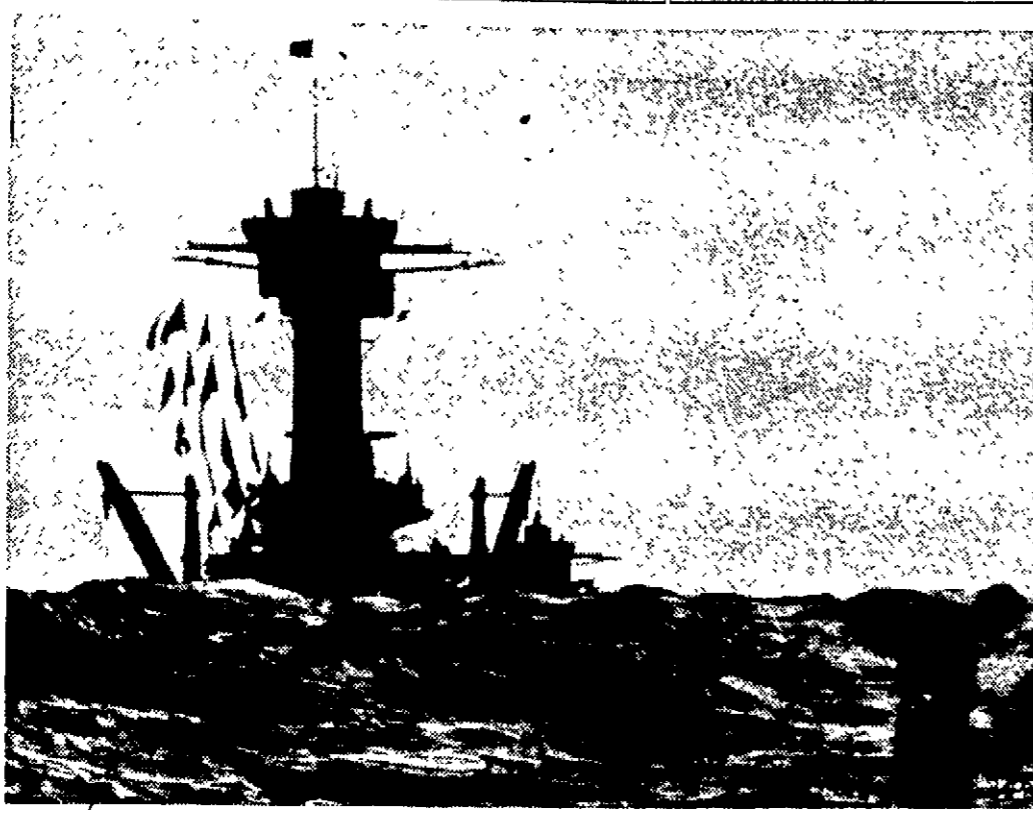

JOHANNESBURG.—Efforts of the South African government to restrict the practice and numbers of medicine men and herbalists in Natal are meeting with obstacles.

Whites who are authorities in Zulu matters, as well as the natives themselves, are pleading for the medicine men. These tribal "doctors" have a knowledge of herbs not possessed by trained medical men. One medicine man told a government board that he could cure lunatics with herbs and asked a chance to make good his claim.

Because they have the confidence of the natives, the medicine men wield a mental influence often helpful in cures.

To Sell Pastor's Farm
Genesee (AP)—A 100-acre farm deeded to the Genesee Presbyterian Church 122 years ago so that its proceeds would help pay a pastor is to be sold because it's a losing proposition. In applying for court permission to sell the farm, counsel for the church asserted it had been operated during the last 10 years at a total deficit of $1,800. William and James Wadsworth deeded the property to the church in April, 1916.

Is $100 Richer

Buffalo (AP)—Adolf Weiss, retired furrier of this city, was $100 richer than he thought for more than four years. A newspaper published a list of persons who had not cashed checks for over-payments of city taxes. The largest amount was due to Weiss. After talking with City Treasurer Leo W. Kirchenstein, Weiss looked over old papers and receipts and found an "unopened envelope from the city treasury" dated September 10, 1934. "I opened it and there was my tax receipt and a $100 check," said Weiss. "I had thought it was just a tax receipt and had never opened the envelope."

themselves a similar hideaway. But will they succeed in preserving it sacred from intrusion? Probably not.

There will always be Father, who can't find his socks, or Son, who can't find his tie, or Sister, who needs something done to her clothes, or Junior, who has cut his finger, or a neighbor, to get a recipe or borrow a pie pan.

The President can disappear, and it doesn't matter; but life stops when Mother shuts her door.

SPRING PLANTING

While Old Man Mars is rarin' to go, the gentle goddess Ceres is on the job. She may have the last word on Europe's threatened Armageddon this spring. The dictators find their countries short of food, and are said to feel that they can't mobilize until the crops are planted. There is a serious shortage of farm labor, especially in Germany.

This is good news to all the world, including the dictatorship countries themselves. The men of military age in Germany and Italy would much rather plow their fields than dig trenches. They would like to reap their crops, too, instead of being reaped themselves by the old fellow with the scythe who got 10,000,000 of them in his last big harvest.

History tends to even things up. So it turns out that, if Paul Revere didn't make that famous ride, he made George Washington's ivory teeth.

The old fashioned woman thought she had achieved social security when she was asked to join the Women's Club and the Saturday Sewing Circle.

Leon Trotsky in Mexico seems to be saying nothing but sawing quite a bit of wood.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act. MENTAL ILLNESS AND EVERYDAY STRESS

I recently drove past a mental institution and noticed the high board fence had been replaced by a low picket fence. There was about fifty or sixty acres of garden land and the inmates were working away at their tasks with the outdoor world passing by in thousands daily.

The reason these patients are at these helpful tasks and almost free amongst those who are normal is that this is now part of the treatment for many mental patients. The fact that they are doing something useful and that in due time they will be out mingling freely with those outside takes away much of the feeling that they are "different." Thus just as soon as the patient can tend for himself in the outside world, taking his place in the home and at his occupation, he is considered normal and leaves the hospital.

The only difference, then, between patients and "normals" is that normals are making a more or less successful fight in obtaining their living and getting along agreeably with their fellows. At the present time one out of every 253 persons in the United States (and this would apply to Canada also) is a patient in a mental institution. This figure does not take into account those whose condition has not reached the point where they need mental hospital care.

What caused the symptoms which made it necessary for the majority of cases to enter mental hospital? Has it been some severe injury, some terrible disaster in home or business?

I am again quoting Dr. J. A. V. Hirsch, in the Yale Journal: "Just as the 'common cold' causes more physical disability than any other condition, so, in mental conditions, the innumerable subconscious emotional disturbances which prevent everyone of us so-called human beings from reacting in a sensible manner to the real facts of life—these things handicap our society far more than does the financial burden of caring for the violently insane and the feeble-minded."

In other words it is the total sum of all our everyday upsets, disappointments, routine or 'rut' that really causes most of the mental ailments and sends so many to mental institutions. By building up the body, removing care and responsibility for a while, and gradually having the patient assume responsibilities more than half of these patients are able to leave the mental institution cured.

El Paso, Tex., (AP)—If you want to avoid the chance of disfigurement in an auto accident wear a safety belt or learn to think quickly. That is the advice of Dr. John Pangman, plastic surgeon, who repairs disfigured persons. When an accident occurs, passengers frequently are injured because they are thrown about the inside of the car. Dr. Pangman said: "A safety belt that holds the passengers tightly in their seats might prevent this. Lacking a belt, the doctor suggested a person has a better chance of escaping injury if he grabs an overcoat, blanket or similar article and clutches it to the upper portion of his body and over his face, protecting himself."

The union, C. J. O. affiliate, which has closed shop contracts covering more than 50,000 subway, elevated, trolley and bus employees in greater New York, has declared that "under the pretense of extending civil service," the Wicks Bill would throw half of the 29,000 I. R. T. and B. M. T.

Miss Brannan Will Give Talk on Nazi Penetration in U.S.

Following closely the sensational Nazi mass meeting at Madison Square Garden in New York city, Eleanor Doddridge Brannan, prominent New York peace worker, will speak in this city Monday, February 27, on the subject, "Nazi Penetration in America."

Miss Brannan's discussion on Monday at 8:30 p. m. at the Uptown Community Center, will mark her second appearance in this city under the sponsorship of the Kingston Branch of the American League for Peace and Democracy. She outlined the woman's place in the world peace movement at a meeting held on March 29, 1938, when she was received favorably by a large audience.

A distinguished ancestry lends weight to Miss Brannan's crusade for peace. She is a descendant of Richard Dana who came from England in 1610 and settled in Cambridge, Mass. She also traces her ancestry to Doddridge, the hymnist. Her grandfather was Charles A. Dana, late editor of the New York Sun. Her father, Dr. John Winters Brannan, was for 21 years the president of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, in New York city.

A student at Oxford and Grenoble universities, Miss Brannan served during the World War as a Y. M. C. A. secretary with the American troops in France. Between 1917 and 1918, she was in charge of a hut in the Lunenburg sector and later was wounded while serving with the 25th Division.

Miss Brannan attended the 1927 and 1929 assemblies of the League of Nations at Geneva. She was a delegate to the Sixth Congress of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at Prague and shortly afterward, addressed a peace meeting at Dresden which included the representatives of nine nations. She has since spoken in 25 states of this country on domestic and international problems.

Gambles With His Dole Money and Wins

VANCOUVER, B. C.—Frank O'Toole, relief recipient, was $5,000 richer because he gambled with his relief money. ## WINS HUGE FORTUNE BY QUICK THINKING

Youth Saves Man From Auto; Heir to Two Million.

NEW YORK.—Picking his way through the thick traffic of Broadway near Forty-third street four years ago, Sidney Swart, then 18 years old and a clerk in an emergency relief bureau, saw an automobile make a quick turn and bear down on an elderly man with a cane. In two seconds the agile Swart reached the unwitting pedestrian and shoved him from the car's path.

Extremely grateful, the older man asked Swart's name and address. He said he desired to express his appreciation in some manner. Two days later Swart received a letter asking him to call at the Waldorf-Astoria. It appeared that the name of the elderly man was Carl Anderson.

Swart lived in two furnished rooms with his sister, Jean, in Brooklyn. He told Anderson about Jean and the latter said he would like to meet her. Anderson also lived with his sister, Miss Gertrude Anderson, 62 years old. Their home was in Sweden. He was a cheese manufacturer, here on business.

Anderson took an immediate fancy to Jean and eventually presented her with a $20,000 check to travel in Europe.

Some time later, after inducing Swart to change his name to Stewart, he took him to Sweden where Swart, now Stewart, remained two years, receiving a musical education, a small fishing yacht, and an allowance of $1,000 a month, he says.

Anderson died in August, 1936, leaving his protégé a $50,000 legacy, and Stewart returned to this country. Then on last October 4 Miss Anderson died and today he received notice that her estate, amounting to approximately $2,000,000, had been left to him.

Now 22 years old, he plans to engage in radio work and invest some of the fortune in motion picture and night club ventures.

Hunters Quit When Bear Turns Tables on Them

KELSO, WASH.—Clyde Mellitt and Joseph St. Onge returned from a hunting trip to report a fantastic escape from death at the claws of a large black bear.

St. Onge sighted the bear first, and his shot knocked the animal off a log. The hunter laid aside his rifle and climbed over the log. A wounded and enraged bear met him. The hunter turned and fled.

He then called Mellitt and returning to the place where St. Onge had laid aside his rifle, the two hunters separated in an attempt to pick up the bear's trail.

Mellitt had progressed only a short distance when the bear charged him. A frantic chase ensued, with Mellitt dashing madly around a stump and the wounded bear behind him.

Mellitt's shouts attracted St. Onge, but was afraid to risk a shot for fear of hitting his comrade. Finally, however, he fired a shot into the air and frightened the bear away.

The hunters decided they had been hunted enough for one day, and made no further attempt to follow the wounded animal.

Army Sergt. Stanley Kuczewski found the "third edition" to be in perfect condition and the youth passed quickly through the routine physical examination.

Man Shoots at Pheasant, Finds Only Head on Stick

TURLOCK, CALIF.—Bob Ferrier, hunting with A. H. Hansen recently, first was thrilled and then was disappointed, says the Oakland Tribune. Ferrier and Hansen had hunted all day without any luck. En route home, while driving along a canal bank, Ferrier spotted what he believed to be a pheasant. He shot with accuracy and then went to retrieve his bird.

But it was only the head of a pheasant that some successful hunter had placed on a stick hidden in the grass.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATIC PAINS-ACHES

It takes more than "just a salve" to bring speedy relief. It takes a "counter-irritant" like good old soothing, warming, Musterole to penetrate the surface skin and help to quickly relieve the painful local congestion and aches due to colds. Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiff joints generally yield promptly.

Better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole has been used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40%. All druggists.

WORTH HIS WEIGHT in gold and other metallic substances, five-year-old James Clayton, Jr., holds an iron bar-bell over his head at St. Louis. His proud father says that Jimmy's note his chest development—can lift 100 pounds to his waist without even straining; he's been practicing five months. The bar-bell weighs 50 pounds, five more than Jimmy.

Youth's Religion Course at School

"Guiding Youth's Approach to Religion" is another of the courses offered to those who enroll in the Leadership School for Church School Workers which will begin sessions on February 27 at the Kingston High School.

Dr. Rowland G. Will of the New Paltz Normal School will be the instructor in this course. In this course leaders of youth may consider the problems and difficulties faced by young people in their religious thinking and practice, and may endeavor to discover what religious ideas and habits are most helpful to youth.

Fish Tale: Pigeons Report His Catch

PASS CHRISTIAN, MISS.—Bridwell Adams, former lieutenant governor of Mississippi, is a great believer in telling your fish stories while they're news.

He carries two homing pigeons on fishing trips in the Gulf and dispatches his messengers with tidings after each big catch. A few minutes later, Mrs. Adams receives the news and gets the skillet hot.

Wanted: A Home

Edge Moor, Del.—A housing shortage may cost Postmaster John D. Lewis his job. Since his appointment, his office has increased in rating from fourth to third class. Postal regulations require him to live in the district and to receive his mail through the office.

Lewis, who lives in Wilmington, is willing to live in Edge Moor—but there are only three dwellings there. All are occupied.

He asked the government what to do.

Truth in Advertising Bill

Olympia, Wash.—Political speeches in Washington State may undergo drastic changes if Rep. William J. Pennock's bill passes. It would require major state officers to add this pledge to their oaths:

"I furthermore do promise and swear that to the best of my ability I will endeavor to perform and fulfill all promises made by me during the campaign as the result of which I was elected to said office."

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's half-calling time on:

Racetrack pictures in which the hero's horse wins because somebody or other rides around the track playing or singing the nag's favorite song, such as "Jeepers Creepers" in "Going Places."

Titles capitalizing on "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," such as "Mr. Deeds Buys a Barrel," etc. Latest is "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," which is excusable, however, as it is to be made by Capra, who did "Deeds" and maybe with Gary Cooper, who was Deeds.

The excessive bad manners of such as the Dead End Kids, Little Tough Guys, et al., which are supposed to indicate how tough and cute the smack-and-hit boys are (The Dead Enders are toning themselves down in "Hell's Kitchen," which indicates the producers have heeded the parental protests.)

These embarrassing scenes in which movie moppets pray out loud, palms joined, beside their invariably tiny trundle beds. (But maybe you like 'em, huh?)

Scenes in which hero and heroine argue about going, say, to the opera, with hero firmly declining in the fade-out, with the fade-in showing hero and heroine at the opera. (This was great stuff when Lubitsch, I believe, first used it.)

Humor which springs from the alleged affinity between canines and trees. (Oh, yes, this still crops up occasionally.)

Those postscript eulogies in which an oratorical actor tells the audience just why Jesse James or whoever will live forever in the hearts of his countrymen.

"Historical" dramas in which fiction, less gripping than fact, but more easily formalized into boy-meets-girl grooves, runs wild with occasional dashes into what really happened. (Jesse's granddaughter, Jo Frances James, was in the hospital last week—but I'm sure it wasn't directly a result of seeing "Jesse James.")

SCENES (in hospital pictures) wherein surgeons and assistants hover over operating tables and mutter in code about Temperature, Pulse, Anesthetic, etc., while their faces register alarm over the invisible patient. (And I don't mean they should make the patient's wound visible, either, which is the next step if they keep it up.)

And what are your nominations?

PORT EWEN NEWS

To Exhibit Dolls
Port Ewen, Feb. 23.—Five "bookmark" dolls from Italy will be among the exhibit at the show of "Heirlooms of Yesterday and Tomorrow" to be sponsored by the Dorcas Society in the Reformed Church House on May 3. The dolls were brought to Miss Sarah Townsend by a friend who was traveling in Italy. Each doll is not over two inches in length and is made by hand with perfect features. The faces are tinted and the dolls are fully clothed, each to represent a different section of Italy. The clothes of each are embroidered and the underclothes are trimmed with hand-made lace. Each hangs on the end of the ribbon, which forms the bookmark. Anyone having things suitable for the exhibition is requested to communicate with Miss Emily Card.

Village Notes

The Reformed Church choir will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Following the weekly rehearsal, there will be practice for the minstrel to be presented on Friday, March 3.

The Men's Community Club will play in the softball play-off tomorrow evening at the Albany Avenue Baptist Church. Preceding the game a dinner will be served to members of the Federation of Men's Clubs. Cars will leave the Reformed Church at 6 o'clock to take the local men to Kingston.

The St. Remy fire department will hold a card party at its fire house tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited and refreshments will be played.

PIONEER CALLS AIR RIDE GREAT THRILL

80-Year-Old Woman Says
She Wasn't Bit Scared.

SALT LAKE CITY.—In her younger days she gave "Billy the Kid" a real "tongue lashing," but when Mary J. Farnsworth, 80-year-old Utah pioneer woman, stepped from a plane here after her first air jaunt she was "thrilled speechless."

An encounter with the Western bad man didn't hold nearly so many thrills as a 20-minute ride through the clouds over Salt Lake valley, which she first entered behind a covered wagon as a girl of 10 years, Mrs. Farnsworth declared.

"The Kid" came to Mrs. Farnsworth's home and threatened to search the residence for weapons during one of his flights from posers.

But he never got inside. "I sent him on his way with a tongue lashing he would never have taken from any man," the pioneer woman recalled.

"The Kid" episode and the dangers and experiences of frontier life can't compare with thrill-packed aviation, she declared.

Stepping from a plane at Salt Lake City municipal airport after her first flight, Mrs. Farnsworth admitted.

"It was the greatest thrill of my life—and I wasn't scared a bit."

Hermit Hears of His 'Death'; It's Good News

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—It took his own obituary to bring Frederick B. Jones from self-exile, two years after he disappeared from his home and work here.

Recently a weathered skeleton was found in rugged mountains 50 miles north of here. Sheriff's deputies estimated it had been exposed two years, and said it might be the bones of Jones, a druggist, who disappeared in August of 1936.

Dental work resembled Jones', and an automatic pistol found near the skeleton was said by a friend to be his. The person whose skeleton was found had apparently been slain.

But it wasn't Jones. Hearing that he was thought to be dead, Jones, 63, emerged from his desert wood-cutter's camp 27 miles from Phoenix just long enough to assure old friends he was alive and happy.

He then heard for the first time that there had been a strained situation, almost war, between European nations and that he had been left $10,000 by his mother-in-law, who died some months ago.

But Jones did not like what he saw in the city and he went back to his hermit life, to which he fled in an escape from "domestic difficulties."

Traps Wheat Thieves
Dufresne, Man. (P)—Troubled by grain thefts, Leon Laurin had an idea. He concealed chicken feathers and leaves torn from his mail order catalogue in all his wheat. After the next theft, Laurin and officers traced some suspects and found them hauling 70 bushels. The two men claimed the wheat came from their own farm, but Laurin plucked his arm into it and pulled out his "markers." Result the two were arrested.

The Characters
 Peter Mallone: Adventurous Journalist.
 Petronella: His courageous sister.
 Tony Lancer: British agent, the man Petrel loves.

Yesterday: Petrel rescues the papers, but her love for Tony is dead.

Chapter 32

"I've Had Enough!"

MY WOUND is not serious. Hassan is badly injured. He is in that car. Her voice sounded hard, cutting, small. There were spots ready to rise and choke it, unless she controlled herself rigidly.

"What happened?" asked Tony. Petrel related the occurrences, as though she were submitting a report.

"We drove without lights until we saw the plane in the moonlight. We had expected it to be guarded by police with cameras and lanterns. Instead we thought we saw figures moving. There were no lights. I told Hassan to turn on his headlights, and make a circuit, to distract the unknown men, so that I could search near the plane. I jumped off the step of the car. The two men ran after the car, and shot Hassan. When I reached the plane, I found one guard gagged and tied up. The other was brandishing a rifle. I fired it, to get them back. Ran to the car and managed to get away. They fired at us as we drove off. That is all."

"All!" muttered Michael, gripping her tighter. Petronella turned her head.

"Will you go to the car and wait for me? I want to speak to Tony alone for a minute. Then I want you to take me back to the hotel."

"All right," he looked strangely at them, and obeyed.

She waited for a moment. The sergeant followed, as his men carried Hassan to one of the police cars.

She was alone with Tony. She faced him.

"Here are the papers you would have risked Peter's life to get, Tony," she flashed. "Luckily my wrist wasn't broken, so I could fire a rifle and drive a car. Hassan is dead, or wounded. But for some reason or other, I'm still alive. But I've had enough, Tony. Thank God I shall never know what lies you would have used to explain it to me, if Peter had gone out there and been killed, as the guard was killed!"

He stepped close to her. "Petrel, you're hysterical. You don't know what you're saying. You don't understand. How was I to know the papers were out there, in the sand, hidden? When he heard that, Peter would have phoned me, and gone with an escort."

She laughed in hard, bitter disbelief. "Peter? Peter, wait! He'd have gone as I did, alone. Well, Peter didn't go. I don't believe you'd have cared if he had," she raged coldly. "You thought of the possibility, but you didn't care. Perhaps she was hysterical, as he had told her. Her nerves had gone. She must get away from Tony, from this hateful scene, from everything."

"It was only when you discovered that I had gone instead, that you were afraid of a scandal. Because you can't let a girl get killed, and not news asking questions. If you hadn't discovered that, you weren't coming, yourself. You were going to wait for the papers in the room at the 'Continental.' Here they are—take them. They have cost two lives, perhaps three!"

"Lucky To Be Alive"

FLINGING them on to the ground at his feet, she turned. She went to the car, and climbed in through the door Michael held open for her.

"Take me away quickly, Mike," she whispered.

"Tony was at the door. 'Wait a minute. She has got to listen. Petrel, you've got it all wrong. Peter will confirm that. You have got to believe two things. That I had no idea Peter was really injured. He forgets to mention things like that, when he is keen to be given a job.'"

"Secondly, I acted quickly, without realizing the possibility that the dispatch might still be in the plane, and Peter, being crazy, might go straight after it. I can never forgive myself for not thinking of that. Unhappily, the rest is true. Papers like these do cost lives. It is a fact. I can't deny it. You did an amazing job. But it was right that you should hate it. You are lucky to be alive."

"I don't feel lucky."

"You are hating me, now. But it is my job you hate, Petrel. When you realize that the things you said were unjust, and bitter, remember that. Think it over."

Petronella met his eyes. Her mind only half grasped what he had said. But the chief thought upmost in her mind was that she did not want to believe, or trust him.

"Peter wouldn't have waited for an escort," she repeated. "He would have been dead. He is alive. You've got your papers. That is all you wanted. These last days you talked, vaguely, always vaguely. You never meant to marry me. But now, I no longer want you. I do hate your job. And you put it first, always first. I thought I loved you, and could put up with that; and with going on leading the life I have, the last years. I thought you were worth it. But you're not. I've had enough. You gave me some good advice. I'm going to take it. I'm going back to England tomorrow. To stay there. I've had enough!"

Tony stepped back. The expression in his eyes was strange. "I can see you have, Petrel. He spoke to Michael. 'Take her home, Mike. Give her a stiff drink. Get a doctor to that shoulder. See that she sleeps. Good night, Petrel. Thank you for these. They cost a lot.'"

Petronella wept quietly, against Mike's steady shoulder. His arm encircled her. He did not speak. At last she said:

"Will you try to book me a passage home from Port Said? If Peter is all right, I'll leave by train tomorrow."

"Why won't you believe him, Petrel?"

"Everything hangs together. He's very plausible now. But he can't cancel out that—that night-mare, Mike. No, he just didn't think it mattered letting Peter take a risk. Some men are like that. Danger is part of existence. He'd have done the same job himself, if he had thought he could succeed. But he was being followed everywhere. He always is. That is his life, Mike. And I can't face it. I couldn't be happy with him. Not now. I suppose I still love him. I can't help it. But I know that he is hard, and insensitive. I'm going to cut him out. Otherwise, Peter will be mixed up in his jobs, from now on. I know it. He admires Tony already. I want Peter to live. He'll be a good man with a knife in his back." She broke down again shivering and crying. As best he could Mike comforted her.

When they reached the "Continental," Ted Masters told them, "René is dead."

It was true, what Tony had said. That dispatch from Moscow had cost a great deal.

"Better Off Without Me"

Tony stood beside Peter's bed in the white private ward. There was beating sunlight outside. It was afternoon.

Petronella had packed, and left by the mid-day train.

Tony spoke. "There's a very flat feeling about Cairo today. I walked to the window, and stood looking out. The bright light revealed the lines of weariness in his face."

"You've said it," agreed Peter. "I'm sorry about last night. I feel it was my fault. I ought to have guessed she was going herself, and stopped her."

"You couldn't help it. I'll never forget what it was like, though, getting your message that Masters had gone. When there he was, having a drink with me."

"Of course I'll write and tell her you were speaking the truth. You couldn't have known René would bury the things. If I'd stopped to think, I should have phoned you, and taken an escort."

Tony flung round. "Don't write. I've told her. She knows. But she was right. There was still danger. There is always danger. I take it for granted. But I don't want to risk the job worth anyone's while. I'd no idea about your injuries. But knowing you, I might have foreseen, as she did, the way you would have acted. The thought of an escort never occurred to you, did it?"

"No."

"I'm going to let her go, without trying to justify myself. She has showed me up. What should I have said if you hadn't got through alive? You see? She's better without me!"

Peter groaned. "I can't stand the thought of her going off alone, like that. These last few days she has been so happy. Happier than I've ever seen her before. Now, I suppose she is feeling equally miserable. Couldn't you send her a radiogram? Just a word or two, to soften it, to suggest the break isn't permanent?"

Tony sat on the edge of his bed. He pulled at a cotton which hung from Peter's bandaged wrist. He shook his head.

"I can't believe it would be for her good. That dispatch gives me orders for Russia; after that, Spain. And tells me there is trouble ahead. Especially in Spain. Reading that document is like looking at the future. I can't see any better than the past. Last night when she was nearly hysterical, it all came tumbling out—how she hates horror, suffering, trouble. Fascism and Marxism are bound to go on clashing. Peter! It is a fight which will have to be fought to a finish. I don't want to drag her into that. I wouldn't recall her, even if I could."

He tossed restlessly. "I suppose you're right. I hope so. But this needn't prevent our being friends, Tony. Do you think they would find any sort of a niche for me in your service?" He sat up, waiting for his answer.

Tony laughed. "Your sister knows you pretty well. She said you would feel like that. But she had a horror of your getting mixed up in it. The least I can do for her is to refuse you."

"But, damn it, she isn't my nurse."

"Sorry, Peter. She also told me something else; besides being impulsive, you are not sufficiently discreet when you're drunk. And you are bad on detail. For all three reasons, I'm refusing."

Peter threw his head back on to his pillow disgustedly. "Women are better at home!" he declared. (Copyright, 1939, Grace Elliott Taylor)

Highland Pastor Talks to Rotary

The Rev. Samuel Art MacCormac, pastor of the Methodist Church at Highland, was the guest speaker at Rotary Wednesday. Mr. MacCormac was born on the banks of the Shannon in the Irish Free State and came to the New York Conference of the Methodist Church in 1924, having previously been a member of the Irish Conference. He told the Rotarians that since he came to America 15 years ago he had been hearing people wonder "where America is going." He added: "It hasn't gone anywhere yet, but when it does I am going with it, because it is the finest land in all the world and has the greatest possibilities."

The speaker gave a witty and helpful talk on how to be happy, being aided not a little by the fact that there are still echoes of the overtones of the "ould sod" in his delivery.

Happiness is not found, said Mr. MacCormac, but is a creation of the soul; neither can we expect to be happy all the time. A good "cleaning out"—physically, mentally and morally—at intervals, was advised, as conducive to happiness of mind and body. Further, Rotarians were counseled to have some plans (not too far ahead), to face the facts of life and to face the fact of hard work.

At the business meeting Secretary Clarence E. Brown read a true appreciation of the late Arthur C. Connelly, prepared by a committee composed of Arthur G. Carr, Emil G. Boessneck and A. D. Pardee.

Visitors included Dr. Kurt Abrams of the Fleischmanns Club, John Brady, and Corporal Norman Baker of New Paltz. The latter, who returned home about three weeks ago after a siege in the hospital, is apparently in fine shape and expects to resume his duties next month.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—The stock market took a hesitant step forward today but lapsed into a drift again as traders held off waiting for the February statement to end.

Following a forenoon buying flurry on Secretary Morgenthau's statement the administration was seeking to encourage business profits and studying tax revision, dealings tried up to a thin trickle. Gains ranging to more than a point, however, were in the majority near the final hour, mostly among the steels, motors, aircrafts and chemicals.

Transactions were at the rate of only about 450,000 shares for the full session.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 15 Broad street, New York city, branch office 43 Main street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Weinberg Called Lifelong Perjurer

New York, Feb. 23 (AP)—Counsel for James J. Hines, Tammany district leader, in closing arguments at his trial today, called George Weinberg, state witness who committed suicide, "a constitutional, professional, lifelong deliberate perjurer."

It was Weinberg who linked Hines with the numbers racket mob controlled by Arthur (Dutch) Schultz. Plegenheimer, who the state charges paid Hines from $500 to $1,000 weekly for protection, and Lloyd Paul Stricker was unopposed in his condemnation as he addressed the jury in general sessions.

Before Stricker began his summation expected to consume the day's session Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., had denied several defense motions to expunge testimony, ruling that it was the jury's duty to decide the case on its merits.

Weinberg, government witness, killed himself two days before he was to take the stand in this, Hines' second trial. The testimony he gave in the first trial was read to the jury.

"He was an unqualified, conscienceless, experienced liar," Stricker told the jury. "A witness who had never taken the stand without committing willful, deliberate perjury."

Handing a photograph of the gangster, suicide, to the jury Stricker roared out:

"Look at him! Look at that face, the features of a rogue, a dirty scoundrel, a perjurer. You should have seen him, seen him like a snake coiled in the witness chair. You should have seen this constitutional, professional, lifelong deliberate perjurer."

"There have been many lies in this case," Stricker said, "but none like this crook's."

The defense moved to dismiss the indictment; to strike out the testimony of John F. Curry, former Tammany leader, who told of police transfers upon the best of Hines; the testimony of Julius Williams, negro, who recanted his grand jury testimony that he was placed on the mob's payroll on Hines recommendation and to dismiss the conspiracy count on the ground that the statute of limitations had run out on it.

"There is no doubt that there is conflicting evidence on the conspiracy," Judge Nott said. "I shall leave that question to the jury."

Dairymen to Have Feeding School

Present-day questions on feeding which puzzle many Ulster county dairymen, who want to increase their dairy income will be discussed at a two-day feeding school scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, March 1 and 2 at the Grange Hall in New Paltz. It was announced today. Professors J. B. Burke and J. A. Lepard of the Animal Husbandry Department, New York State College of Agriculture, will conduct the school.

More efficient feeding of dairy cattle and the use of more home-grown roughages have a prominent place on the program. Dairymen will be urged to make full use of their farms for production of feed.

Many dairymen have often been "stumped," it is pointed out, when it comes to answering questions like these: Are vitamins necessary in the dairy ration? Can the butterfat test be raised through feeding? What is good quality hay? How much protein should be fed in the grain mixture? How can calves and young stock be raised to develop a large capacity for roughage? What should go into making a grain mixture? Does it pay to chop or to grind hay? How does grass silage compare with hay?

Professor Burke says dairymen can also bring their own questions to the meeting because it is held for their benefit, and the more questions they ask, the more useful information they can acquire.

Those who attend the sessions will be shown a simple method of selecting the right feeds to use in making up a grain mixture that has the right amount of protein and is suitable with the roughage available on the farm. The aim is "to get the most out of every dollar spent for feed," and, as a result, increased dairy income.

The needs of the cow, what happens to feed after it is fed to the cow, and practical suggestions for successful dairy farming are included among topics for the school.

The feeding school will run for two days, with a morning and afternoon session each day. No sessions will be repeated, and something new and different is given each time, according to County Agent Albert Kurdt. He urges every dairyman to attend all sessions. The school will start at 10 o'clock each morning and will close promptly at 3 p. m.

Bureau Arranges Fruit Meetings

The Ulster County Farm Bureau is sponsoring two regional fruit meetings this week, one in Haverhill Hall at Modena tomorrow, and the other in the Milton School at Milton on Saturday. Both meetings will begin at 9:30 a. m. and continue until about 4:45 p. m.

The speakers at these meetings will be Dr. P. J. Chapman and Dr. J. M. Hamilton, both from the New York State Experiment Station at Geneva, and Dr. M. B. Hoffman from the College of Agriculture at Ithaca. Dr. Chapman will discuss early season sprays and summer spray schedules. Dr. Hamilton will discuss the principal factors in scab control and fungicides for fruit. Dr. Hoffman will discuss fruit and fruit diseases. There will also be a question box at 1:30 o'clock at which time growers will have an opportunity to ask questions about their own problems.

At the Modena meeting lunch will be served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Modena Methodist Church. At Milton, growers will be able to get lunch at local restaurants.

The Fruit Committee of the Farm Bureau invites all interested growers to attend one of these meetings. The same program will be covered at each meeting.

to distribute current wages they said were five days overdue.

Bunched around steam pipes for warmth on levels 250 and 500 feet below the surface, the miners sent up word, however, that they intended to stay underground until they also received back pay they contended was due them for more than a year from a previous company regime.

The present operating concern was organized a year ago through bankruptcy proceedings. The miners, comprising the day force, announced their demands at the end of the afternoon shift yesterday. A similar number of men on the night shift reported for work last night, but were sent to the company's office. Mine Superintendent Peter Boyle said no attempt would be made to operate the workings until the issue was settled.

The workers slept last night on planks gathered from various parts of the mine. Some were in a steam-heated medical station, while others built shanties around steam power pipes to keep warm. State Mine Inspector William J. Bottomley said after a trip into the shaft that the men were well supplied with food.

With one exception, the men were informed they could have anything they desired to add to their comfort, liquor was barred. Meanwhile, fellow workers and friends outside gathered supplies for them. A truck went from door to door collecting food and clothing.

La Rochelle Next

Business Group To Protest Route

Business Men's Association as well as the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Men's Association had made plans for increased traffic to and from the World's Fair and it had been anticipated that the summer traffic would be largely increased by visitors to the fair. The matter of publicizing Ulster county to World's Fair visitors has been discussed at several business men's meetings and it is anticipated definite action will be taken next week at the regular monthly meeting to protest against an attempt to divert to the east shore the majority of traffic.

Good Roads, Attractions

Not only has the west bank of the Hudson good roads with numerous state highway bridges, ferries and tubes giving splendid access to New York city and the east shore but on the west shore are many historical monuments. In Kingston is the Senate House in which the first senate of the state met and which is now preserved as a museum and it was also in Kingston that the first state capital was located.

Down the river at Newburgh is located historical Washington's headquarters and all along the west shore are other historical structures. The United States Military Academy at West Point and the famous Palisades of the Hudson are on the west bank. All these facts will be directed to the attention of the traffic commission.

Double Designation

Mr. Rowe this morning said in his opinion the State Highway Commission should designate both sides of the river as main arteries of travel and the beautiful and historical features of both sides of the river should be outlined for benefit of the visitors who could then select their own route. Official designation of one route on either side of the river would not in his opinion be justified when the entire Hudson valley held such unusual scenic features.

The old stone houses of Kingston, which escaped the flames of the British torch, and the many old Colonial houses throughout the county are alone of importance enough to bring thousands of visitors down the west shore unless they were directed by "official" designation to the opposite shore.

Sunshine and Health

Those who live in the land of snow may find themselves on a crisp and frosty morning longing for a trip to sunny lands. In the mind's eye they can picture themselves lolling on the sun-warmed sands, basking in the golden sunshine, loafing and loving it. And at the same time, those in the land of sunshine, wilted from the sun's hot rays, or wearied of the damp, rainy, muggy weather, and lacking the will, the effort required to accomplish the tasks of the day, wish that Seven League Boots would transport them to a far-away spot where they might partake of sleigh-ride parties, ice skating, tobogganing and all the rest of the winter sports.

It is but human nature to want to be where we are not—the fields across the way are ever greener. But wherever we are in these great United States, we can partake of the fruits of the land of sunshine—fruits that build healthy bodies. Canned fruits or fresh fruits, matters it not, you can use either to make the fruit salad bowl illustrated above. Don't forget the nuts. They also come from the land of sunshine and contain calories a-plenty!

MIXED FRUIT AND WALNUT SALAD

1 slice pineapple, 12 pitted dates, 1 orange, 1/2 cup broken walnut kernels, 1 banana, sliced, 2 cups seeded white grapes, cooked salad dressing and lettuce.

Cut pineapple, dates and orange

Hints

To clean silver, add 1/2 cup salt and 1/2 cup soap flakes to sufficient cold water to cover silver in an aluminum pan. Remove from fire as soon as it boils. Wash silver in hot, soapy water and dry thoroughly.

When you send Tommy to the store for eggs, be sure to specify on your shopping list, "in self-locking cartons." You won't have to worry about quality or breakage then.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

SOCIETIES • CLUBS • PERSONALS

Third Cooperative Program Wednesday

The third in the series of programs presented by the Co-operative Concert Association will take place on the evening of Wednesday, March 1, at the high school auditorium, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

Dorothy Crawford, a one-woman theatre, who has for years been captivating audiences on the Pacific coast, abroad and now in the east will be the artist and will be assisted by a concert pianist.

While ranking with Ruth Draper and Coraella Otis Skinner, Miss Crawford still is in the dramatic portrayal of human beings of many human types.

Perhaps the outstanding quality of Dorothy Crawford's work, that has and does put her in the top bracket reserved for so very few in the class of monologists is her masterly combination of intellect and emotion, of humor and pathos, of laughter and tears which she brings to her every characterization, be it the most highly drawn comedy or the most profound drama.

Miss Crawford writes all of her own monologues. She writes and portrays nothing that she cannot do sincerely; it must first have interested and intrigued her. It is said that some of the work songs which she set down in Egypt and dared to sing were so accurate that to Miss Crawford's delight, the boatmen and donkey drivers recognized them.

A pianist worthy to be associated with Miss Crawford on the program will give variety to the evening's unique entertainment.

Students on Honor Roll

Syracuse, Feb. 23.—Three Kingston and vicinity students have been named to the honor roll in the College of Liberal Arts at Syracuse University. Dr. Imlia G. Crawford, dean, announced today. Orlando A. Patonoff of Marlborough, and Miss Gloria J. Richards of Margaretville, have maintained a "B" average or better in all their college work since enrolling. Miss Dorothy Stewart of 25 Green street, Kingston, earned a "B" average for the past semester.

Benefit Show at Y. W. C. A.

The Junior Business and Industrial Girls' Club of the Young Women's Christian Association will present a "Flash and Dash Revue" in the gymnasium of the Y. W. C. A. building at 14 Henry street, Tuesday, February 28, at 8:15 p. m.

This is the first affair to be presented by this newly organized group which now has over 30 members. Miss Ottilia Riccobono is staging the production, assisted by Miss Helen Cragan, who is in charge of the skits used in the show, and Miss Lillian Herdman, group advisor. Refreshments will be on sale and there will be dancing following the show. The proceeds realized will be used to establish a fund for summer camp.

Atharhacton Has Meeting

The work of literary and dramatic newspaper criticism was discussed Wednesday afternoon at the regular meeting of Atharhacton Club held at The Huntington Club held at The Huntington Club, Carlton S. Preston hostess.

The paper was presented by Miss Mary E. Noone assisted by Mrs. Harold P. King. Miss Noone explained the important roles played by the critics in securing the acceptance or rejection of plays and books by the public, and said that drama critics are largely responsible for standards that have been kept by the theatre. The producer's viewpoint can be understood when it is realized that a production representing a large investment may be doomed by one sentence from the pen of the critic.

The discussion of the literary critic was based on a letter from Olga Owens Huckins, book critic of the Boston Transcript and daughter of Mrs. Minnie V. S. Owens of this city. Mrs. Huckins said that some 6,000 volumes are received by the Boston Transcript each year but that only a fraction are given reviews. Mrs. Huckins reads six books a week, writes three shorter reviews and contributes to the book column. The critics are in no way restricted in what they may write by the papers for which they work. The club will meet next with Mrs. Cornelius Treadwell.

Craig-Bruceckner

Miss Theresa K. Bruceckner of 15 Shufeldt street and Chester A. Craig, Jr., of Cortekill, were married February 12 by the Rev. B. Russell Branson at Clintondale. ### Wiltwyck Chapter Has Special Program

A special program of colonial music was given at Wiltwyck Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, Wednesday afternoon in celebration of the birthday of George Washington, and was arranged by Miss Catherine McClements and Miss Alberta Davis, members of the Junior Group of Wiltwyck Chapter.

The music of George Washington's time was combined with an interesting and complete discussion of the Moravians who were in America at the same time, and their music. This was given by Miss Davis. She explained the history of the Moravians from their formation in northeastern Bohemia and their spread to Moravia, Poland and Germany and later to America. The Moravians accompanied nearly every occasion of their life with music, which always was of a religious nature. Following the paper Miss Helen Turner reported on her attendance at an Easter week-end service at a Moravian settlement at Winston Salem, N. C.

The remainder of the program was in charge of Miss McClements who gave a short description before each number. As an example of the spirituals which were sung by the slaves in Washington's time an ensemble composed of Mrs. LeRoy Wood, Mrs. Clarence Wolfersteig, Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, Mrs. John Snyder, Mrs. John MacKinnon, Mrs. Bertrand Bishop and Mrs. Mortimer Downer sang "Deep River" and "Didn't it Rain." They were accompanied by Miss Turner.

At the time of the Puritans, music was frowned upon except as an aid to divine worship but by Washington's time, concerts, ballad operas and musical evenings in the homes were frequent. An illustration of music that might have been played in the home, Miss Eva DuBar, accompanied by Miss Turner played the "Sonata in A Major" by Vivaldi, arranged for violin.

Two songs of the period were sung by Mrs. Warren Ingalsbe accompanied by Mrs. Bertrand Bishop, "The Mansion of Peace" written in 1790 by Samuel Webbe and "Beneath a Weeping Willow's Shade" written in 1788 by Francis Hopkins.

As a concluding number a court minuet danced in old colonial costume was given by Miss Helen Bradburn, as the gentleman and Miss Margaret Howe as the lady. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lloyd LeFever.

During the afternoon the Regent Mrs. Burdette Turtle presented a good citizenship play, Miss Virginia Luedike who was chosen by the high school students as the best citizen in the senior class.

A social hour followed with the members of the entertainment committee hostesses.

Jewish Women Celebrate

The Women's group of the Congregation Agudas Achim held its first anniversary and Washington's birthday celebration at the Hebrew School last evening with a social and cultural program commemorating both events. Of importance to this occasion was an article especially written by the Honorable Isaac Siegel of New York city, who was unable to attend in person to deliver his address. His paper on "George Washington and the Jew" was read by Mrs. Jerry Spiesman and dealt with Washington's response to a letter written by the Newport Hebrew Congregation of Newport, R. I., dated August 17, 1790.

The letter in part read, "May the children of the stock of Abraham who dwell in this land continue to merit and enjoy the good will of the other inhabitants while everyone shall sit in safety under his own vine and fig tree and there shall be none to make him afraid. May the father of all mercies scatter light and make darkness on our paths and make us all, in our several useful vocations here and in his own time and way, everlastingly happy."

A musical program consisted of vocal and instrumental numbers given by Muriel Klein, Muriel Gray, Leonard Suskind, Elmore Yallum, Harry Simon, Audrey Ellenbogen and Marcia Stout.

Hostesses to Bridge Club

Among those entertaining their bridge club Wednesday were Mrs. Edwin Kittle, who entertained at a delightful George Washington's desert bridge at her home on Elmendorf street, Mrs. Frank Tease, who entertained at her home on Foxhall avenue, and Mrs. Joseph Garland, who was hostess at her home on Smith avenue.

Andrew J. Snyders Hosts at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Snyders of Rosendale were hosts at a dinner dance at the Governor Clinton Hotel Wednesday evening given by Mr. Snyder in honor of the birthday of his wife.

The table was attractively decorated with red roses, which also were used as favors for the guests. Paul Zucca's orchestra played during the dinner and for the dancing which followed.

A lovely effect may be obtained with three shades of one color and a contrasting color—or you can use up yarn scraps in the motifs. In either case use a dark background to set off the colors. Pattern 6320 contains directions for afghan; illustrations of it and of stitches; materials needed; color schemes.

Ash Wednesday to Easter

Lent is the annual season of fasting in the Spring, observed by many churches as a preparation for the great feast of Easter, and as a time of special penitence. This period, since the early Middle Ages, has been established as the 40 week days preceding Easter, the first being Ash Wednesday.

Whether you observe Lent in your home as a period of fasting or not, it is well to serve during this period frequent menus comprised of seafood or meat substitutes. This because during this season of the year many distributors put special sales efforts behind such items as fresh fish, salmon, tuna fish, shrimp, eggs, macaroni, spaghetti, noodles, rice and cheese. And each time that the distributors of these products promote a special advertising campaign, you will find your local grocer featuring these items at popular prices. This is always a help for the budget-conscious homemaker.

But once she purchases the item, another problem confronts her. How to use it? And that's a pretty important one, particularly if some members of your family are a bit "finicky" about eating seafoods or starches or eggs. Disguising the item may be the only practical way out and these recipes are designed to do just that.

NORWEGIAN RABBIT RICE**

½ pound Swiss cheese, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons thick seasoning sauce, ½ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon and Al Rein sang several songs. Cards and dancing were the feature of the evening. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Robinson, and daughter, Romana, of West Camp; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Robinson of Saugerties; Mr. and Mrs. John Young and children, Peter and John, Jr., of Rye; Miss Dorothy Young, Mr. and Mrs. William Bator and daughter, Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Arliss Krom, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rein, Mr. and Mrs. Al Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Entrott, and Mrs. Milton Entrott and daughter, Marion.

18,553 Aliens Compelled To Leave U. S. in 1938

WASHINGTON.—James L. Houghteling, commissioner of immigration, said that 18,553 aliens were forced to leave the United States last year.

Houghteling's annual report to Secretary Perkins said 9,275 were deported on warrants and 9,278 others, who had been adjudged deportable, left of their own expense. The total leaving in the previous year was 17,617.

During the year ending last July immigration officials barred 8,066 aliens from entering. Immigrant arrivals numbered 67,695, compared with 50,244 in 1937 and 36,329 in 1936. The total was far below the quota of 153,774. Houghteling said, Germans and Austrians, totaling 17,199, led a classification by races in the report designated 11,917 of the Germans as Jews.

Houghteling said there had been a steady decrease in the alien population since 1924, and estimated the total last July at 3,338,576. He said 162,076 were granted citizenship last year.

The dangerous use of Africa has been largely controlled by use of screen traps.

Penguins Make Peace

AT LAST Willy Nilly had succeeded in driving the penguins away from the bears who had realized that these creatures were afraid of them.

"They looked as dangerous as sea leopards," Mrs. Johnny Penguin explained. "I am so sorry we got excited. We never would hurt any creature in the world unless we felt our babies were in danger."

"I understand," said Willy Nilly, kindly. Mrs. Quacko Duck was rubbing some duck lintum on Willy Nilly's slight scratches and the bears were unhurt.

Then Willy Nilly got some food for the bears and the other Puddle Muddlers got something to eat for themselves, while Rip brought down the fish for the penguins.

The penguins offered some of their fish to the bears to make up for the way they had treated Jelly and Honey Bear, Blacky and Jupiter and Chubby.

All was peaceful once more and while the other Puddle Muddlers had a good deal to do the bears and penguins thought they would take another sun bath.

The sun was very warm and the glare hurt the eyes of the penguins, so Willy Nilly bathed their eyes in sea salt and water and they felt so much better that they belonged to their far away home. It was true that the babies had never known the sea or salt air, but they felt just a little homesick.

"The pond is lovely," they thought, "and we like fresh water pools, but the sea and the cold sea air is what we call home. We feel a little bit lonely."

Lehman to Name Lyons to Succeed E. P. Mulrooney

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP).—Governor Lehman announced today he would name John A. Lyons, second deputy police commissioner of New York state, as state commissioner of correction to succeed Edward P. Mulrooney. Mulrooney recently submitted his resignation to take effect "on or about March 1" in order to become a labor "mediator" for the New York City Hotel Association and affiliated labor organizations. Lyons' appointment will require confirmation by the Senate, which recently approved unanimously Mulrooney's reappointment by the governor. The job pays $12,000 a year.

The prospective new administrator of the state's extensive prison system is 53 years of age. He has been nearly 30 years in the New York city department, to which he was appointed as a patrolman November 8, 1909. Lyons, in 1935, organized and commanded an investigating squad under Thomas E. Dewey, who had just been appointed special prosecutor of New York city jetties by Governor Lehman.

He was appointed assistant chief inspector of the New York department on March 3, 1936, and in that capacity took over entire command of its detective division. He was named second deputy police commissioner by New York city's Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia on January 1, 1938.

It happened last night—Troy defeated the American League leading Colonials, 33-22.

Tonight, the Haymakers come to town to oppose the big Green and White quintet at the municipal auditorium. There should be plenty of action.

Kingston, held to one single foul in the second period last night, hopes to hit the victory tonight to keep further away from those Sphas who are pressing them for the American League lead.

"It seems we just couldn't get started," Barney Sedran replied to the question of how it all happened. "There should be plenty of thunder when those Haymakers come to town tonight."

Carlisle Husta, whose upstarters forced the Colonials into an overtime session, once this season, was the hero of last night's skirmish. The former Kingston star made 12 points on three fields and six fouls.

Harry Fitzpatrick with two dunks and a pair of free ones led the Colonials in scoring and next came Benny Kramer with five markers. Chick Reiser, Frankel and Kaplan failed to hit their stride and turned in only seven points for their combined efforts.

Two Stars Out

Trailing by 22-9 at the beginning of the last period, the Colonials tried to put on one of those dazzling finishes, but, even though they did score 13 points, seemed lost without the services of Pete Berenson and Charlie Johnson, two of their most valuable men, who are on the injured list.

A dash of color was added to the affair when Kaplan tangled with Polacha of Troy over a difference that cropped up during the encounter.

Last night's defeat cut Kingston's lead over Philadelphia to a game and a half, and this is the main reason why the Colonials will be "out for blood" tonight when the Trojans play them at the auditorium.

That how the Sedranites made their upstart rivals is expected to be the enticing factor for a lot of fans to attend tonight's game. Many figured, Troy just a pushover, but that victory Charlie Husta's gang turned in proves that a game is never won ahead of time.

Cost of Olympics

Helingsfors, Finland (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The Finnish parliament has voted 200 million Finnish marks (approximately $5,000,000) to finance the Twelfth Olympiad, which starts here July 20, 1940. Half this amount also will be contributed by the Helingsfors municipality, bringing the estimated cost of the games to $7,500,000.

Kingston High Varsity Plays DUSO Game at Liberty Friday

Kingston High School's undefeated basketball team will take the floor in Liberty tomorrow night without the services of Milt Dubin and Ray Lindhurst. As a result the Kiamen will be underdogs in the DUSO battle.

For the first time since the same Liberty class last year the Maroon and White wars will open an important game minus their star players. Paulie Argulowicz failed to see action last season against the Indians.

From all appearances it seems as though the undefeated Kiamen clinched the DUSO League pennant in the nick of time. Both Lindhurst and Dubin were around last Friday and helped nip the stubborn Mildies by 46 to 45 for the league crown.

Dubin suffered a chipped bone in his shoulder. Ray Lindhurst contracted pneumonia.

Harry Flowers, who has played off and on lately, will probably start in Lindhurst's spot at left forward. Harry still has to show his real worth as a full-game man.

In his games to date though Flowers has given some good performances and now that he has undoubtedly be more dangerous.

Although Coach Kias hasn't announced it definitely, George "Whiskers" Dougherty is expected to take over for Milt Dubin at the guard slot. Replacing the important Milt Dubin will be plenty tough for Dougherty, but he should be a good man to have around.

With Ray Lindhurst and Milt Dubin out of action the Liberty Indians are favorites, the first time this has happened throughout the present campaign. Liberty as before, will bank its hopes on "Yutch" Meadow, Lou Hasbrouck and Don Crook. In the first game against Kingston Meadow tallied 15 markers and again Friday figures to have a busy evening.

West Hurley Five Trips Artillery

First Battalion Headquarters basketball team lost to the West Hurley quintet last night at the 15th Field Artillery armory by the score 31-30.

The soldiers kept their opponents in check the first half of the game with West Hurley trailing at the intermission by eight points. A rally in the last quarter, however, won the game for West Hurley before the soldiers were able to check them.

Noek lead the artillerymen in scoring by gathering 11 points. Rooney and Bob Nussbaum shared honors for West Hurley, collecting eight points apiece.

Tonight the artillerymen will play the Forst Packers of the City League at the armory. Starting time of the game is 8 o'clock. Admission to the game is free.

Chivers Brothers For Olympics

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 23 (AP)—Warren and Howard Chivers, Dartmouth College's famed skiing brothers, stood out today as every bit as good as they have been rated.

The pair finished one-two in the two-day tryouts for the American team which will compete in the winter Olympics in Europe next year. Another Dartmouth skier, John Litchfield, was third.

Warren Chivers finished fourth in the jump yesterday. This added to his victory in the 15-kilometer cross country race, gave him a combined point total of 455.5. His brother finished second in the cross-country and ninth in the jump for a total of 446.3, while Litchfield had 428.5 points.

George Kotlarek of the Duluth, Minn., Ski Club, won the jump, concluding event of the annual Lake Placid club's invitation ski tournament and the Olympic tryouts, with leaps of 53 and 52 meters and a point score of 225.5.

Goose Goslin, whose timely hit clinched a World Series championship for Detroit only a few years ago, finished as a Washington outfielder last season.

It was not until Van Buren and Minasian began tossing in the calks in the closing period that the Merchants did anything to build up their score.

Feldman Boxes Galento Tonight

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Tony Galento, brought into better lighting trim by a few extra bouts of beer, declared himself ready to go into the ring tonight and kayo Abe Feldman in a sensational style.

Two-ton Tony was undisturbed by the day's delay because of rain.

"I'll knock Feldman kicking and then they can bring on Joe Louis, if he will fight me," he modestly announced.

It is expected the crowd will total nearly 15,000 and the gate will range between $25,000 and $30,000.

Car Turns Over, Driver Walks Off

Shortly after 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the police department received a telephone call that a Chrysler sedan, license number 7D 73-26 had upset on Hasbrouck avenue. One of the radio cars was sent to the spot.

Lorenzo Prusser of 704 Hasbrouck avenue, informed the police that he had helped extricate the driver from the upset car and that as soon as the driver had gotten out of the car he had walked away without leaving his name or address. The driver apparently was unhurt.

The police department had the car towed to the Doe Smith Garage, and checking on the license number learned that the car was owned by Warren M. Johnson, Jr., of RFD 1, Kingston. It was also learned that the car was not being driven by Mr. Johnson, who did not learn that his car had been in an accident until 11 o'clock that evening.

The government's $1,500,000 exhibit at the San Francisco world's fair is devoted largely to Indian life.

By L. L. STEVENSON

It is possible that when spring comes, new Treasury department regulations will govern the issuing of passes to those who wish to go to the piers to welcome friends and relatives arriving on ocean liners. Under present rules, only one pass for each passenger is permitted. To enforce such a regulation would necessitate checking the entire passenger list of each ship. What a task that would be can be imagined when it is known that from 500 to 700 applications for such passes are made each day at the customhouse. The procedure is simple. The applicant merely fills in a blank, which has spaces for his name, the name of the passenger and the ship and his relationship to the passenger. If the clerk handling the application doesn't happen to remember a request involving the same passenger, the pass is issued. Hence, few passengers are welcomed by only one pier visitor. Usually there is a whole party waiting for the ship to dock.

Limitations on the number of pier passes have a practical purpose. The pass admits the holder to the baggage enclosure. When a liner docks, the pier immediately becomes a place of great activity. Baggage must come ashore and be inspected by customs officials as quickly as possible. The giant liners of today have huge piers. But they also attract huge crowds. The crowds get in the way and cause confusion and delay. Customs men and police at the gates are firm in their refusal to admit any except holders of passes. In fact, those gates are just about the only ones in New York that can't be crashed. The trouble is that too many passes are issued. A recent arrival on one of the big liners found 23 friends waiting for him on the pier.

Barring all visitors was considered at a recent conference of officials who are wrestling with the problem. It is doubtful if that will be done, however, because of protests by travelers and shipping interests. But if they can be worked out, new and more effective measures of limitation will be put into effect before the rush season next summer.

When Frankie Burke, Jimmy Cagney's double, came here for the opening of "Angels With Dirty Faces," he stopped at the Warwick hotel. Burke, whose real name is Vasselle and whose family comes from southern Italy while Cagney's comes from southern Ireland despite their similarity in features, was discovered hopping bells in a hotel down in Las Vegas, N. M. His home is in Brooklyn and when he reached his seventeenth birthday, he started out looking for a job and didn't find it until he reached Las Vegas. One of the places in New York where he applied in vain was the Warwick hotel.

Youngsters of this modern age seem to get their thrills in reverse. David and Armand, 11-year-old twins; Renee, aged 10, and Heidi Ann, 6 children of Armand Denis and Leila Roosevelt Denis, explorers, recently returned from an 11,000-mile flying trip with nothing exciting to report except a short train ride. They flew with their parents on a good-will trip to 50 cities with the picture "Dark Rapture," which Mr. and Mrs. Denis filmed in the Belgian Congo. To keep from getting bored on the long flight, the children took along their pets, white mice, flying squirrels and a pair of pink snakes, also a movie camera.

The incident that saved the trip from being a total loss to them occurred at Omaha. There the plane was forced down by weather conditions, so the family made the short jump to Des Moines by railroad. Wildly excited by what they looked on as a novel form of transportation, the Denis kids wanted to ride with the engineer, blow the whistle and shovel coal and though denied such a privilege came to their home near Putnam, Conn., real railroad fans. Now they are looking forward to a horse and buggy ride promised them by the village doctor.

Writes Best Seller

TOKYO.—From the war front in China has come a book which today is breaking all existing records for best sellers in Japan.

The author, Sergi. Ashira Hino, is a front-line soldier now fighting in central China. His book was written during rest periods in marches over rugged mountains in the Wuhan area.

The title, "Mugi to Heital," may be translated "Wheat and the Soldier." The sergeant has turned over all royalties to the war effort. Sales so far are well over 1,000,000 copies.

Woburn, Mass., Feb. 23 (AP)—The spectacle of two policemen directing traffic from the backs of a pair of 1,500-pound dray horses was promised Woburn residents today by Mayor William E. Kane.

The fiery ex-marine who recently ordered street lights put out on moonlit nights, said the two biggest men on the Woburn force would be assigned to the "cowboy" roles on Friday and Saturday nights.

"The elite pay good money to ride horses," said the mayor. "The police now can ride them for nothing, combining business with pleasure, so to speak."

He said lassoing of offenders would be barred.

STRANGE TRAPS SET BY G-MEN IN WAR AGAINST CRIMINALS

U. S. Agents Pose as Almost Anything From Cowhand To Insurance Salesman.

WASHINGTON.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed that a federal agent once soothed an irate Tennessee mountaineer with the strains of a violin.

An F. B. I. tabulation showed the department's special agents have posed as almost anything from a cowhand to an insurance salesman. It disclosed that agents could take their places in any of 33 trades, have been employed in 21 different industries and have followed 37 types of business occupation.

The violin-playing G-man had been assigned to hunt a violator of the white slave act. He had walked through rough country to the lonely mountain cabin of the criminal's father. Bureau records show that he entered the cabin where several men were seated—high-powered rifles near at hand. The agent stated his mission, asked if the violator were around and received the answer in "venomous" language that not only would he fail to get his man but he would not be permitted to leave the cabin.

Played Violin.
The agent spied a violin on the mantle and asked if he might play it. His hostile hosts answered affirmatively. Then the agent extracted from memory the tunes he knew as a young man: "Comin' Round the Mountain," "Old Black Joe," and "The Rosary," and then mountain folk songs.

The mountaineer's manner soon softened. He took the agent's hand and allowed him to leave. He also promised to have his son surrender. Less than a month later William Howard submitted to federal authorities, pleaded guilty to the offense, and paid a fine of $200.

Once, during the hunt for Public Enemy No. 1, Alvin Karpis (now in Alcatraz), a man with a knowledge of Lithuanian was sought to talk with Karpis' elderly father. An agent qualified for the assignment.

One Teaches Skiing.

At one time an agent worked under cover as a skiing instructor. The G-men now have members who qualify in 30 separate sports.

Solution of the famous murder case among the Osage Indians in the early 1920s following the discovery of oil on the reservation was accomplished with the help of an agent who posed as an Indian medicine man. Another circulated through the locality as an insurance salesman and almost sold a policy to the ringleader of the murder conspiracy. Another played the part of an ordinary Texas cowhand.

On the F. B. I.'s list of vocations are 31 mechanics, seven plumbers, 15 painters, 12 cooks—even a blacksmith and a tree surgeon. Their previous business range from ranching to restaurants and from dry cleaning to the study of economy.

In the bureau's investigation following the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel of Oklahoma City in 1933, an agent posed as a state inspector in order to examine a farm thought to be the hideout of George ("Machine Gun") Kelly and Albert Bates, the kidnapers. He described the farm from Urschel's description of it by well water with a "mineral taste" drawn from the well with a bucket and rope on a pulley "which made considerable noise."

'Seven Cities'

Far from the mainland and rarely visited by cruise ships the Azores are known as the "garden spots of the Atlantic," according to Raymond-Whitcomb.

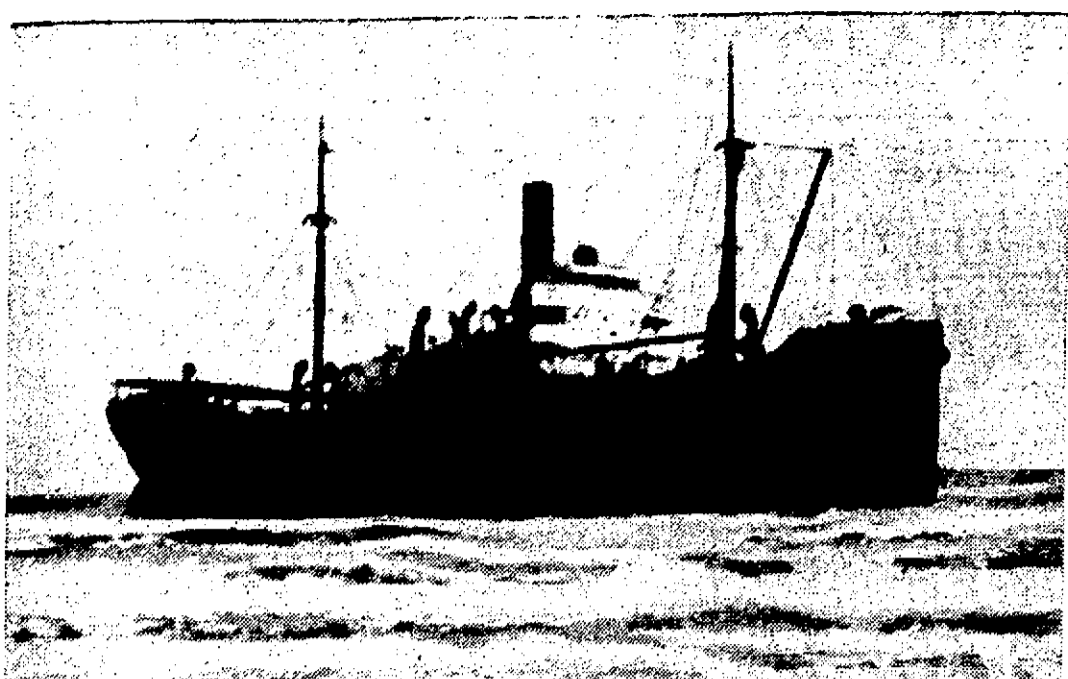

On the principal island of St. Michaels are the Seven Cities, not what the name implies, but two remarkable lakes in a volcanic crater. One of these lakes, Lagoa Grande, is brilliant blue; the other Lagoa Pequena, is emerald green. When water in the lakes is high the division between them is not discernable but each retains its distinctive coloring.

AFIRE IN GULF OF MEXICO

An SOS call received by coast guards at Galveston, Texas, reported that the little steamship Texas Banker, (above), of 2,500 tons, was afire in the Gulf of Mexico, about 250 miles southeast of Galveston. The Texas Banker is shown as she suffered a previous mishap in 1936. She's stranded, here, on the beach at Corpus Christi, Texas, after running aground in a fog.

Officials of Two Continents at Loss Over Ship Report

SOS was not the Pecten. Spokesmen for the company said they had radioed the vessel for information but added "we are not a bit anxious," pointing out the ship was 1,000 miles away from the point where the call for help emanated.

They said the call letters used did not apply to British, but to foreign vessels.

Two facts led to the earlier belief in shipping quarters that the vessel which sent the message might have been the Pecten.

The letter "C" in international code stands for "ten," or Pecten. The Pecten, en route from Trinidad to Southampton, apparently was in the area from which the SOS came, as indicated by its last reported position.

Radio officials expressed belief that, if the message was genuine, the fact that it was not repeated indicated the vessel had plunged to the bottom immediately.

Leading credence to the affair was a report from Horta, the Azores, by shipping officials who said officers of a vessel which reached there last Friday announced sighting two submarines of unidentified nationality in the vicinity of Fayal Island, in the general area from which the SOS was sent.

The message, picked up by the Portuguese navy department at Lisbon, Portugal, as well as by the station here, said: "Have been torpedoes by unknown submarine. Holed below water line. Sinking. Urgent."

The call letters by which the message was signed—"PECC"—are not assigned to any vessel at present, leading to a wide range of conjecture. The region from which the SOS emanated was far east of the area where the U. S. fleet is engaged in war games and west of the waters where insurgent Spanish submarines have operated.

The Empress of Australia, on a cruise out of Miami, reported it was continuing the search and the Greek steamer Mount Pelion told radio authorities she was proceeding under forced draft to the scene. Portuguese naval authorities dispatched no rescue ships, they said, because they believed other shipping much nearer.
